

Nature's Revenge

Reclaiming Sustainability in an Age of Corporate Globalization

Edited by Josée Johnston, Michael Gismondi & James Goodman

Table of Contents:

Acknowledgements

Introduction

1. Politicizing Exhaustion: Eco-social Crisis and the Geographic Challenge for Cosmopolitans

Josee Johnston, Michael Gismondi, and James Goodman

Part I: Corporate "Sustainability"

2. Who Cares About the Commons?

Josee Johnston

3. Electricity Restructuring's Dirty Secret: The Environment

Marjorie Griffin Cohen

4. Wet Dreams: Ideology and the Debates over Canadian Water Exports

Andrew Biro

5. Corporate Social Responsibility and Codes of Conduct: The Fox Guarding the Chicken Coop?

Ineke C. Lock

Part II: Alternative Sustainabilities

6. The Nature of Local Reach

Michael Gismondi

7. Leave It in the Ground! Eco-social Alliances for Sustainability

James Goodman

8. Local Participation and Sustainability: A study of Three Rural Communities in Oaxaca, Southern Mexico

Evelinda Santiago Jimenez and David Barkin

9. Toward a Movement of Multiple Scales: The Canadian Jubilee 2000 Initiative

Janet Conway

10. Beyond the Local and the Global: Scales of Resistance, Repression, and Sustainability

Damian Grenfell

11. Afterword: Only Sustain ... The Environment, "Anti-globalization," and the Runaway Bicycle

James Anderson

12. Conclusion: Moving from a Vengeful Nature towards Sustainability Pathways

Josee Johnston, Michael Gismondi, and James Goodman

References

Contributors

Index