

Contents

INTRODUCTION

History teaching

History's children

Putting the project into perspective

CHAPTER 1: 'The Edmund Barton Syndrome'

What sort of nation would forget the name of its first prime minister?

Connecting to federation

But what about Australia's second prime minister?

CHAPTER 2: The Allure of Anzac

The 'Australian Mecca'

Simpson and his values

Taking the critique to the classroom

CHAPTER 3: 1788 and all that

'... just a little bit of history repeating'

The curse of curriculum

'Indigenous history still matters'

CHAPTER 4: A national curriculum

The Renaissance kids

Between compulsion and revulsion

How can we get a national curriculum right?

CHAPTER 5: History in the classroom

What kids hate

The 'history teacher'

How do we teach it?

CONCLUSION

FURTHER READING

INDEX