MODERNISM AFTER WAGNER

JULIET KOSS

- The first critical history of Wagner's concept of the Gesamtkunstwerk and its impact on European modernism

References to the Gesamtkunstwerk, a "total work of art," abound in discussions of modern art and culture, often describing a seamless melding of a variety of art forms that overwhelm the emotions, impede critical thought, and mold a group of individuals into a powerless mass. Famously set forth by the composer Richard Wagner in 1849, the term has been applied to such disparate settings as the cinema palaces of Berlin in the 1920s and Andy Warhol's Factory scene in New York in the 1960s. In Modernism after Wagner, Juliet Koss explores the history and legacy of Wagner's concept, laying out its genealogy and the political, aesthetic, and cultural context from which it emerged, and tracing its development and reception through the 1930s.

SENSUOUS SURFACES: THE DECORATIVE OBJECT IN EARLY MODERN CHINA

JONATHAN HAY

- A systematic, richly illustrated introduction to the decorative arts in Ming and Qing dynasty China
- Shows how an informal collection of aesthetic rules affected every level of decoration in early modern China, from an individual object to the arrangement of an entire residential interior
- Features around 280 colour images of a wide range of early modern Chinese objects and works of art

Sensuous Surfaces is a systematic introduction to the decorative arts in Ming and Qing dynasty China. Jonathan Hay's analysis takes in both material and technique, and also issues of patronage and taste, which together formed a loose system of informal rules that affected every level of decoration in early modern China, from an individual object to the arrangement of an entire residential interior. Featuring around 280 colour images, of a wide range of early modern Chinese objects and artworks, this book will engage anyone with an interest in decoration, art, China – or the experience of pleasure itself.

ABANDONED IMAGES: FILM AND FILM'S END STEPHEN BARBER

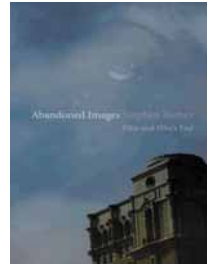

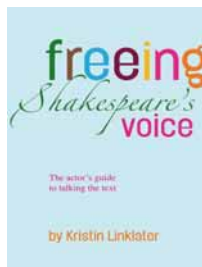

- An exploration of an extraordinary collection of twelve derelict picture palaces in downtown Los Angeles, that broadens to ask questions about the future of film itself
- Looks at the profound transformation taking place in the way we experience film, from the abandonment of traditional venues, to the rise of digital media
- Will be of interest to those engaged in contemporary developments in film, visual media and digital arts

Broadway avenue in downtown Los Angeles holds an extraordinary collection of twelve once-luxurious and now abandoned film-palaces, built between 1910 and 1931. In most cities worldwide, such a concentration of cinemas would have been demolished long ago – here however the buildings have survived the end of film-projection intact, some of their interiors ruined and gutted, others transformed and re-used as churches, nightclubs and storage spaces. Stephen Barber's Abandoned Images: Film and Film's End begins with an exploration of these remarkable derelicts, and broadens to ask questions about the abandonment of film itself.

Poetry & Poets

CLEANNESSE

ANONYMOUS, Edited & Translated by KEVIN GUSTAFSON

This edition provides a new facing-page translation of an important Middle English alliterative poem, generally attributed to the author of Sir Gawain. A complex meditation on courtly and religious ideals, Cleanness has been praised for its densely figurative language, elaborate descriptive set pieces, and moving depictions of cosmic and human drama. More recently, the poem has also attracted attention for contributing to the history of sexuality in its discussion of sexual practices. Appendices include biblical and literary sources for the poem and other medieval writings on sexuality and sin.

9/11 AND THE LITERATURE OF TERROR

MARTIN RANDALL

9/11 and the Literature of Terror analyses the various representations of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001 in the US in a wide selection of novels, short stories, poems and plays. Randall provides the reader with a discussion of the tropes, narratives and styles that may emerge as authors, journalists, playwrights and poets 'write on' from the event itself. The growing number of films, documentaries and TV shows that have investigated the events of 9/11 are also examined, as well as other texts such as autobiographical essays, journalistic features and political polemics.

FLATLAND

EDWIN ABBOTT

Flatland is an influential mathematical fantasy that both introduces non-Euclidean geometry and satirizes the Victorian class structure, science and faith, and the role of women. A classic of early science fiction, the novel takes place in a world of two dimensions where all the characters are geometric shapes. The introduction and appendices to this edition provide context for the book's complex references to Victorian culture and religion, mathematical history, and the history of philosophy.

OLD ENGLISH LITURGICAL VERSE: A STUDENT EDITION

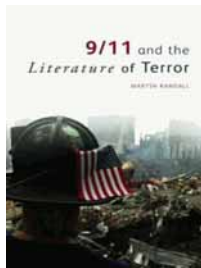

SARAH LARRATT KEEFER (ed.)

This is a student edition of Old English poems, dated from between 975 and 1060, which are based on liturgical material used in the Anglo-Saxon Church. The edition introduces students to poetry that lies outside current anthologized material, and encourages them to consider the Anglo-Saxon aesthetic by looking at its articulation of the Latin liturgy. Finally, this edition is innovative in presenting the texts in a facing-page format; each poem appears in both semi-diplomatic format, preserving spatial and scribal information evident in the manuscript witness, and in a Critical text, the conventional format for presenting Old English verse. Detailed explanatory notes accompany the text of each poem, and an introduction provides historical, religious, and linguistic background.

BEN JONSON JOURNAL

TALKING RENAISSANCE TEXTS: ESSAYS IN HONOR OF STANLEY STEWARTM. THOMAS HESTER (ed.)

For over four decades, Stanley Stewart has been a major voice in Renaissance literary studies. Stewart has explored the imagery of religious verse, re-examined the categorical implications of 'major' and 'minor' poets and playwrights, and pioneered the use of Wittgensteinian analysis in literature. Still more recently, he has proven to be an adamant and intelligent defender of the traditions and wisdom of humanistic study and criticism. These essays in his honour rely upon Stewart's methodological approaches to examine literary and philosophical texts in their contexts.

EDINBURGH STUDIES IN TRANSATLANTIC LITERATURES

BRITISH ROMANTICISM AND SPANISH AMERICA, 1777-1826: REWRITING CONQUEST
REBECCA COLE HEINOWITZ

Robert Southey did not exaggerate when he described the England of his day as "South American mad." Britain's fascination with the region displayed itself in poems, plays, operas, political tracts, news reportage, travel narratives, and stock market quotations. In this book, Heinowitz demonstrates that British writing about Spanish America redefines the anxieties, ambivalences, and contradictions that characterize Romantic Imperialism.

THE SIGN OF FOURARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, SHAFQUAT TOWHEED (ed.)

Arthur Conan Doyle's second Sherlock Holmes novel manages to be both detective story and quest romance. Ostensibly the story of Mary Morstan, a woman enlisting the help of Holmes to find her vanished father and solve the mystery of her receipt of a pearl on the same date each year, it uncovers a tale of treachery and human greed. The action audaciously ranges from penal settlements on the Andaman Islands to the suburban comfort of Pondicherry Lodge in Upper Norwood, and from the opium-fuelled violence of Agra Fort during the Indian 'Mutiny' to the cocaine-induced contemplation of Holmes' own Baker Street. This edition places Doyle's tale in the cultural, political, and social contexts of late nineteenth century Imperialism.

EDINBURGH COMPANION TO THE GAELIC LANGUAGE

MICHELLE MACLEOD (ed.), MORAY WATSON (ed.)

Bringing together a range of perspectives on the Gaelic language, this book covers the history of the language, its development in Scotland and Canada, its spelling, syntax and morphology, its modern vocabulary, and the study of its dialects. It also addresses sociolinguistic issues such as identity, perception, language planning and the appearance of the language in literature. Each chapter is written by an expert on their topic. The book has been written accessibly with a non-specialist audience in mind. It will have a particular value for those requiring introductions to aspects of the Gaelic language. It will also be of great interest to those who are embarking on research on Gaelic for the first time.

WILLIAM WALLACE

ANDREW FISHER

- Reprint available March 2010
- Over 3500 copies sold of previous edition

'a tremendously popular account of one of Scotland's genuine heroes' – Scottish Life
'the first well researched and reliable biography of Wallace . . . Andrew Fisher has looked at the sources with a fresh eye and the result is a lively and interesting study' – History Teaching Review

Despite Wallace's almost mythical status – boosted in no small part by the film Braveheart – present-day perceptions of him are not always based on the objective analysis of the historical facts. In this revised and expanded biography, Andrew Fisher investigates all the aspects of Wallace's life and character, treating him as a man of his time. The result is a more authentic picture of the greatest of Scotland's heroes than has been previously available.

- A major textbook introduction to the American South, from its colonial beginnings to the present
- Combines classic texts with introductory essays by cutting edge scholars
- Reflects the tensions of the American South
- Places an emphasis on the living issues of the American South

The American South is a world of remarkable diversity (in terms of ethnicity, geography, occupation, etc.) and contradictions, and this book reflects the host of tensions it embodies. The study of Southern history has been shaped by living issues and this emphasis on historical interpretation gives the book its niche. It is unique in its sampling and analysis of essential readings in southern history, from the region's beginnings to the present.

- Re-release of historical classic from an enigmatic and controversial author
- A fascinating look at the first wave of Eastern European immigration

This book, first published in 1941, is a witty and perceptive account of the mutual impact of Poles and Scots in wartime Scotland. The author discusses how a real affection grew out of initial misunderstanding: '[the Pole] took the other for a kind of Englishman, and was rewarded by being taken for a kind of Russian'. He records warm Scottish hospitality, and friendships in which each side tried to explain the complexities of their national history to the other.

SPINOZA'S ETHICS

BETH LORD

A step-by-step guide to Spinoza's Ethics. The Ethics presents a complete metaphysical, epistemological and ethical world-view that is immensely inspiring. However, it is also an extremely difficult text to read. This book takes readers through the text, stopping at the most perplexing passages to explain key terms, unfold arguments, offer concrete examples and raise questions for further thought. It is designed to be read alongside The Ethics, enabling students to think critically about Spinoza's views and build an understanding of his complex system.

ISLAM AND THE FOUNDATIONS OF POLITICAL POWER

ALI ABDELRAZIQ, ABDOU FILALI-ANSARY (ed.), Translated by LOUTFI MARYAM

The publication of this essay in Egypt in 1925 took the contemporaries of Ali Abdelraziq by storm. It was the focus of much attention and the seed of a heated debate. At a time when the Muslim world was in great turmoil over the question of the abolition of the caliphate by Mustapha Kamal Ataturk in Turkey Abdelraziq, a religious cleric trained at Al-Azhar University, argued in favour of secularism. The abolition of the caliphate had re-ignited the issue of Islam and politics, as traditional political systems were dissolving under pressure from European powers while most Muslim countries had lost their sovereignty.

RECALLING THE CALIPHATE: DECOLONISATION AND WORLD ORDER

SALMAN SAYYID

- Considers why Islam's political and cultural influence has not dissipated in the advance of westernisation and modernisation
- Examines the interaction between Islam and politics in the postcolonial world

As late as the last quarter of the twentieth century there were expectations that Islam's political and cultural influence would dissipate as the advance of westernisation brought modernisation and secularisation in its wake. Not only has Islam failed to follow the trajectory pursued by variants of Christianity, namely confinement to the private sphere and depoliticisation, but it has also forcefully re-asserted itself as mobilisations in its name challenge the global order in a series of geopolitical, cultural and philosophical struggles. Recalling the Caliphate engages critically with the interaction between Islam and the political in context of a postcolonial world that continues to resist profound decolonisation.

MARGARET REGAN

- From an award-winning journalist whose beat is immigration and border issues
- Sweeping perspective and on-the-ground reportage
- A fresh look at impact on civil liberties and the environment

"The Death of Josseline by Margaret Regan is a humane, sensitive, and informative perspective on a current and controversial topic. It also testifies to the fastest growing international criminal activity today: body trafficking. We all must pay attention."—Ana Castillo, author of The Guardians

Using Arizona as a microcosm, this book explores the larger issues surrounding the massive human migration from Mexico to America including: the desperation that compels Mexicans to cross the border; the militarization of the borderlands; the pile-up of unidentified bodies; how the rights of U.S. citizens have been curtailed; and, the resulting environmental damage.

FROM PROTEST TO CHALLENGE: A DOCUMENTARY HISTORY OF AFRICAN POLITICS IN SOUTH AFRICA, 1882-1990

GAIL M. GERHART, CLIVE L. GLASER

Volume 6: Challenge and Victory, 1980-1990

A multi-volume chronicle of the struggle to achieve democracy and end racial discrimination in South Africa. Beginning in 1882 during the heyday of European imperialism, these volumes document the history of race conflict, protest, and political mobilization by South Africa's black majority. This volume takes up the story in 1980 and examines the crucial decade that preceded the collapse of the apartheid system.

LEARNING TO SALSA: NEW STEPS IN U.S.-CUBA RELATIONS

VICKI HUDDLESTON, CARLOS PASCUAL

As longtime U.S. diplomats Vicki Huddleston and Carlos Pascual make painfully clear in their introduction, the United States is long overdue in rethinking its policy toward Cuba. This is a propitious time for such an undertaking—the combination of change within Cuba and in the Cuban-American community creates the most significant opening for a reassessment of U.S. policy since Fidel Castro took control in 1959. To that end, Huddleston and Pascual convened opinion leaders in the Cuban American community, leading scholars, and international diplomats from diverse backgrounds and political orientations to seek common ground on U.S. policy toward Cuba. This pithy yet authoritative analysis is the result.

ACTIVE CITIZENSHIP: WHAT IT COULD ACHIEVE AND HOW

ANDREW LOCKYER (ed.), BERNARD CRICK (ed.)

Active citizenship states that members of the community have certain roles and responsibilities to society and the environment. It is much discussed in political and academic circles, yet the party debates and proclaimed policies do not always seem clearly connected with actual practice.

TRANSPORT REVOLUTIONS: MOVING PEOPLE AND FREIGHT WITHOUT OIL

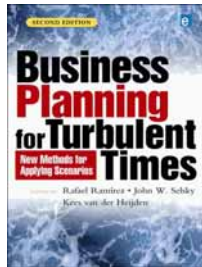

RICHARD GILBERT, ANTHONY PERL

'If policy makers ignore this book it is at our peril.' -Dave Hughes, Senior Geoscientist and Energy Analyst, Geological Survey of Canada

'This book should be on the desk of every transport minister's chief policy adviser.' -John Adams, Emeritus Professor of Geography, University College London

First released in 2007, the bestselling Transport Revolutions argued that land transport in the first half of the 21st century will feature at least two revolutions. One will involve the use of electric drives rather than internal combustion engines. Now available for the first time in paperback and updated with the most recent data, it sets out the challenges to our growing dependence on transport fuelled by low-priced oil.

FIXING FUEL POVERTY: CHALLENGES AND SOLUTIONS

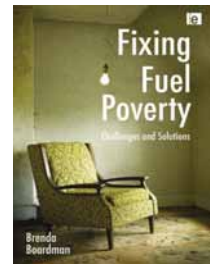

BRENDA BOARMAN

- Energy prices (and therefore their impact on the fuel poor) are, and are likely to remain, a big issue
- Author is the main name in the field and this title will be the definitive work in the field

'[Brenda Boardman is the] doyenne of academics involved with researching fuel poverty' — The Guardian

As fuel prices continue to soar, more and more people are finding themselves unable to meet the basic costs of energy, and may be forced to choose between (for example) adequate food and adequate warmth — they are in fuel poverty. It is a complex issue, and for years companies, governments and civil society have vigorously apportioned blame with little to show in the way of practical results.

FORESTS FOR PEOPLE: COMMUNITY RIGHTS AND FOREST TENURE REFORM

ANNE M. LARSON (ed.), DEBORAH BARRY (ed.), GANGA RAM DAHAL (ed.), CAROL J. PEIRCE COLFER (ed.)

- Provides an in-depth comparative study of community access, rights and the transfer of forest tenure rights
- Based on grassroots comparative research in over 30 communities in 12 countries and on 3 continents
- Brings together two important arenas of debate that are often separated: tenure/ land rights and community forest management

In recent years governments have transferred at least 200 million hectares of forests to communities living in and around them. This book assesses the experience of what appears to be a new international trend that has substantially increased the share of the world's forests under community administration.

ETHNO-ORNITHOLOGY: BIRDS AND INDIGENOUS PEOPLE, CULTURE AND SOCIETY

SONIA TIDEMANN (ed.), ANDREW GOSLER (ed.)

- Reflects the growing realization among ecologists and conservationists that human dimensions and local knowledge must be incorporated into their work
- Presents knowledge from indigenous peoples that has not previously been recorded
- Provides practical advice for professionals and identifies techniques that can be transferred between regions, environments and collections
- One of the editors, Sonia Tidemann, was Adjunct Professor of Natural and Cultural Resource Management at the Batchelor Institute of Indigenous Tertiary Education, Australia for 14 years

An African proverb states that when a knowledgeable old person dies, a whole library disappears. In that light, this book presents knowledge that is new or has not been readily available until now because it has not previously been captured or reported by indigenous people. Indigenous knowledge that embraces ornithology takes in whole social dimensions that are inter-linked with environmental ethos, conservation and management for sustainability.
